Introductory Note

IBO's programmatic reviews of the 2006 budgets of selected city agencies are intended to assist the public and elected officials better understand the allocation of budgetary resources to city services by presenting agency budgets in a way that is more closely aligned with the actual programs, functions, and services of major city agencies.

The current city budget presentation inhibits understanding and participation in three ways.

First, agency budgets, organized into broad units of appropriation, do not easily allow users to understand how much money is being spent from one year to the next on the programs and services that citizens and their elected representatives care about—programs such as job training, childhood lead-poisoning prevention, HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment, after-school programs, immigrant services, affordable housing construction, and recreation programs.

Second, budget proposals are presented in terms of Financial Plan changes, rather than in terms of year-to-year comparisons. A proposed cut, or "PEG," of $1 million in a program is presented without information on how much was previously projected for spending on that program in previous Financial Plans, and whether the $1 million "cut" would leave spending lower, higher, or the same as previous years' spending levels. This presentation often manifests itself in annual debates over "hidden cuts" and what has been "baselined" in the Financial Plan. This manner of presenting the budget makes it difficult to understand the consequences for agency programs of budgetary decisions.

Finally, it is virtually impossible to link spending decisions to program results. Although at one time the city was a trailblazer in performance reporting, the lack of linkage between performance data reported in the Mayor's Management Report and elsewhere, and clear spending information, makes it difficult for citizens, elected officials, and even agency managers to know what they are getting for their money and to evaluate alternatives. Our programmatic budget presentations integrate existing performance data from the Mayor's Management Report, Capstat, and other sources produced by the Mayor's office alongside spending figures, to provide a unified presentation of both spending and performance.

Our goal in preparing these budget reviews has been to hew as closely as possible to how the agencies themselves present their organization, programs, and services, on their official Web sites and other sources, including using the agencies' own language to describe programs in most cases. While we have sought, and in most cases received, considerable input from agencies in the preparation of the program budget reviews, our presentations are not necessarily how the Mayor's budget office or the agencies themselves would present their budgets, were they to do so in programmatic terms. Nonetheless, we think that our presentations can be instructive and point the way toward how to improve understanding of the city's budget in a way that enhances public participation in the budget process.

IBO will periodically update our program budgets. We will continue to separately issue our analysis of the Preliminary Budget, including of selected agency budgets, as we have every year as required by City Charter section 246.

We welcome your comments or questions, which you may direct to IBO at (212) 442-0632, or by e-mail to ibo@ibo.nyc.ny.us.

City University of New York

MISSION

According to New York State Education Law, CUNY is "supported as an independent and integrated system of higher education on the assumption that the university will continue to maintain and expand its commitment to academic excellence and to the provision of equal access and opportunity for students, faculty and staff from all ethnic and racial groups and from both sexes."

AGENCY DESCRIPTION

CUNY is the nation's largest urban university: 11 senior colleges, 6 community colleges, a graduate school, a law school and The Sophie Davis School of Biomedical Education. More than 450,000 degree-credit students and adult, continuing and professional education students are enrolled at campuses located in all New York City boroughs.

Because the city and state have different areas of financial responsibility within the CUNY system, only a portion of the total university budget is included in the city's budget. The state funds the four-year degree programs, plus the graduate and law schools. Both the city and state contribute to the community colleges. This report focuses solely on CUNY spending recorded in the city's accounts.

PROGRAM AREA: ADULT AND CONTINUING EDUCATION

Each year over 225,000 students enroll in adult and continuing education courses at CUNY colleges. These generally non-credit courses help students to achieve a variety of educational and career goals including professional certification and licensing, career change, skills enhancement, preparation for the general equivalency diploma and other standardized tests, and intellectual and artistic enrichment. Funds for adult and continuing education courses in the city's CUNY budget help pay for courses at the six community colleges.
