Introductory Note

IBO's programmatic reviews of the 2006 budgets of selected city agencies are intended to assist the public and elected officials better understand the allocation of budgetary resources to city services by presenting agency budgets in a way that is more closely aligned with the actual programs, functions, and services of major city agencies.

The current city budget presentation inhibits understanding and participation in three ways.
First, agency budgets, organized into broad units of appropriation, do not easily allow users to understand how much money is being spent from one year to the next on the programs and services that citizens and their elected representatives care about-programs such as job training, childhood lead-poisoning prevention, HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment, after-school programs, immigrant services, affordable housing construction, and recreation programs.

Second, budget proposals are presented in terms of Financial Plan changes, rather than in terms of year-to-year comparisons. A proposed cut, or "PEG," of $$ 1$ million in a program is presented without information on how much was previously projected for spending on that program in previous Financial Plans, and whether the $$ 1$ million "cut" would leave spending lower, higher, or the same as previous years' spending levels. This presentation often manifests itself in annual debates over "hidden cuts" and what has been "baselined" in the Financial Plan. This manner of presenting the budget makes it difficult to understand the consequences for agency programs of budgetary decisions.

Finally, it is virtually impossible to link spending decisions to program results. Although at one time the city was a trailblazer in performance reporting, the lack of linkage between performance data reported in the Mayor's Management Report and elsewhere, and clear spending information, makes it difficult for citizens, elected officials, and even agency managers to know what they are getting for their money and to evaluate alternatives. Our programmatic budget presentations integrate existing performance data from the Mayor's Management Report, Capstat, and other sources produced by the Mayor's office alongside spending figures, to provide a unified presentation of both spending and performance.

Our goal in preparing these budget reviews has been to hew as closely as possible to how the agencies themselves present their organization, programs, and services, on their official Web sites and other sources, including using the agencies' own language to describe programs in most cases. While we have sought, and in most cases received, considerable input from agencies in the preparation of the program budget reviews, our presentations are not necessarily how the Mayor's budget office or the agencies themselves would present their budgets, were they to do so in programmatic terms. Nonetheless, we think that our presentations can be instructive and point the way toward how to improve understanding of the city's budget in a way that enhances public participation in the budget process.

IBO will periodically update our program budgets. We will continue to separately issue our analysis of the Preliminary Budget, including of selected agency budgets, as we have every year as required by City Charter section 246.

We welcome your comments or questions, which you may direct to IBO at (212) 442-0632, or by e-mail to ibo@ibo.nyc.ny.us.

New York City Police Department

MISSION

The mission of the Police Department (NYPD) is to maintain public safety and security, to respond to calls for emergency aid, and to conduct investigations of criminal activity.

AGENCY DESCRIPTION

NYPD uniformed and civilian personnel are principally assigned to the agency's 76 police precincts, 12 Transit Districts, and nine Housing Police Service Areas, as well as other investigative and specialized units which "protect life and deter crime while responding to emergency calls and impartially enforcing the law."

Precinct Operations

About 40 percent of all uniformed police personnel (and about 15 percent of "civilian" police personnel) staff the 76 police precincts located throughout the city. One of the main functions of police personnel assigned to precincts is responding to E-911 calls for police assistance. More generally, precinct personnel are "responsible for the protection of life and property, the prevention and repression of crime, the apprehension of criminal offenders and the enforcement of laws." Precinct personnel are also responsible for maintaining patrol of all public streets, highways and parks situated within precinct boundaries. (Source: NYPD District Resource Statement)

Patrol Borough Operations

Each of the city's 76 police precincts is located within one of eight patrol boroughs, which include Manhattan South, Manhattan North, Bronx, Brooklyn North, Brooklyn South, Queens North, Queens South, and Staten Island. Patrol borough commanders oversee and supplement the law enforcement activities within the precincts situated within their respective boundaries.

Central Enforcement Operations

PROGRAM AREA: CENTRAL ENFORCEMENT OPERATIONS

Includes centrally (as opposed to precinct or borough-administered) police operations as well as units that target specific crimes or have specialized functions. Also includes units that generally provide support to police operations across the city. As displayed in the table below, this Program Area is disaggregated into four "Programs," each of which is discussed in greater detail on the following pages.

Special Function Units

Includes NYPD units that can be said to have very specialized functions that might be utilized in a variety of settings, such as the Aviation Unit which might be employed in searching for a suspect via helicopter-surveillance or used to assist in the agency's counter-terrorism operations. Also included within this category are the Harbor Unit, Mounted (Horse Patrol) unit, and Emergency Service Unit (ESU). The latter provides specialized equipment, expertise and support to the various units within the NYPD, from auto accidents to building collapses to hostage situations.

Special Enforcement Units

Includes the agency's detective and investigation units, counter-terrorism operations, as well as the Criminal Justice Bureau. The latter serves as liaison with other agencies involved in the criminal justice community, including the five county District Attorney's Offices, the New York State Office of Court Administration, the Division of Criminal Justice Services, and the Mayor's Criminal Justice Coordinator's Office. Also includes centralized police operations targeted against narcotics and organized crime, with the latter including illegal gambling, prostitution, violation of liquor laws, loan sharking, sexual exploitation of children, etc. Various other units targeting specific crimes such as gun possession, robbery, rape, domestic violence, crimes, hate crimes, etc. are also included.

Support Functions

Includes NYPD units that essentially support law enforcement operations in the field.
Two of the most significant entities in terms of total expenditures within this program are the Fleet Services Division (formerly known as the Motor Transport Division), and the Communications Division. The Fleet Services Division (FSD) is responsible for all aspects of fleet management including procurement, accounting, maintenance, repair and relinquishment of the Department's diverse 7,500+ vehicle fleet. The primary mission of the Communications Division is to provide and support the E911 system. Also included are the Administrative Services Division which coordinates all Police Department capital construction projects and is responsible for the maintenance, cleanliness, repair and renovation of the Headquarters facility at One Police Plaza. The Division's Quartermaster Section is the storehouse and distribution center for most of the Department's equipment, furniture and supplies.
